Talent Search Leads Summer Enrichment

Middle school participants listen attentively as they learn about one of the “7 Habits of Highly Effective Teens.”

The summer months do not have to be a season of boredom and mental atrophy. During two weeks in June, TRiO Educational Talent Search held its annual Summer Enrichment program to engage participants in keeping their minds active and focused on college while having fun. Over one hundred middle and high school students attended two learning events.

Opening session for middle school students began with an icebreaker for teambuilding. Students competed for the tallest balloon display through leadership, cooperation, and strategizing. Pictured at left, middle school students used balloons and masking tape to construct balloon towers. The winning team displayed patience, consideration, and communication skills to take the prize.

Ms. Priscilla Smith led a session called “Exploring Career Choices.” She stated the three components to choosing a successful career are seeking personal interests, concentrating on skills and talents, and enjoying a career versus having a job.

Talent Search Leads Summer Enrichment

Ms. Kim Beaty led a session entitled, “Interviewing and Dressing for Success.” She shared the basic components of interview skills including eye contact, knowledge of position being sought, and choosing the appropriate attire. Bruce Jones, a former TRiO Talent Search participant, Wallace Community College alumnus, and student at Alabama A&M, provided a mentoring moment via video which provided beneficial information about the road to college and the field of mechanical engineering. Ms. Karla Guilford, volunteer English instructor, taught an online English lesson customized for our TS middle school participants. Participants wrote personal narratives to be submitted in a writing competition. Middle school participants also toured the Sparks campus during Summer Enrichment.

Plenty of volunteer opportunities exist for youth, so students were encouraged to find one that is right for them, and jump in!

Volunteerism is a very important part of growing as individuals. This year, participants partnered with the Wallace Community College PTK and brought items for the “Baby Drive.” Donations included diapers, pacifiers, bottles, wet wipes, and gently-used clothing. Talent Search Director Tameka Owolabi offered the following suggestions to participants: “Volunteer at your school, church, and community because it is important to help others and it gives you a sense of satisfaction to help make a difference in the world.”

High school students benefitted from studying “The 7 Habits of Highly Effective Teens.” While learning about “Beginning with the end in mind,” students participated in a “ride down career alley” which demonstrated some of the “wrong turns” many students face while preparing for the future.

Being proactive was also highlighted during the week. Students were encouraged to think before acting or speaking and to choose to have a “sunny” rather than a “cloudy” disposition.

Participants also attended a workshop entitled, “Writing for Scholarships” and worked on scholarship resumes and the scholarship search process. Ms. Jennifer Matheny stopped by to discuss dual enrollment and encouraged participants to attend Wallace.

Talent Search Enrichment

Summer and crafts go hand-in-hand, and with the help from volunteers, Mr. Larry Williams and Ms. Wanda Donaldson, former Upward Bound participant, the students learned to paint and draw and had tons of fun mixed with touches of learning. High school participants created canvases of a beautiful nightscape featuring city buildings and bridges depicted in bright fluorescent colors.

Talent Search Leads Summer Enrichment

Culminating the week for high school students was a tour of the University of Alabama at Birmingham (UAB). Students observed the excitement of college life, learned about the different majors available, and shared in the opportunities provided by the prestigious institution. The day continued with a visit to the Birmingham Civil Rights Institute. There they witnessed some of the historic and tragic events of the Civil Rights Era in the South, including the Sixteenth Street church bombing, the arrest of Rosa Parks, and the plight of those who became known as the Freedom Riders.

Talent Search participants had an amazing experience at Summer Enrichment 2017! One student remarked, "We spent a great amount of time making new friends and socializing which helps us to be less shy. We learned about being proactive and reactive. We learned about habits and received great books, and there are no complaints about the food!"

At right, students listed characteristics they have in common with each other and then constructed A House of Cards from their similarities.
