Members of the Wallace Community College – Sparks Campus SGA recently assisted the Georgetown Rotary Club with a community service project at the Roosevelt Warm Springs Institute for Rehabilitation. Students donated their time to perform landscaping around the institute, which is located in Warm Springs, Georgia. Franklin Delano Roosevelt founded the facility in 1927.

To assist with restoration of the institute, students cleared foliage away from historic landmarks, and worked on landscaping for the new golf course that will open in May. Derek Crawford, SGA-Sparks Campus advisor, said the event was an opportunity to teach students about teamwork and the importance of community service. "I enjoyed learning more about FDR's personal connection to the facility," said SGA member Terrius Rodgers. "It is such a feeling of accomplishment to help preserve the institution that Roosevelt worked hard to create for disabled citizens."
