TRiO Student Support Services Tour Four-Year Campuses

February 2018

The TRiO Student Support Services students traveled to Mobile, Alabama during its most engaging and entertaining time of the year... MARDI GRAS!

The group started with a campus tour of Spring Hill College, a private, Roman Catholic, Jesuit, liberal arts college in the Spring Hill section of Mobile. It was founded in 1830 by Most Reverend Michael Portier, Bishop of Mobile. The group then headed a few miles away to the University of South Alabama to check out its big beautiful campus and the great opportunities that it offers students.

After lunch and a quick rest, the TRiO participants headed downtown to the Mystic Strippers Society parade. According to Mardi Gras historian Emily Hearin, "On the evening of the 1939 Mardi Gras celebration, a merry group of six friends, along with their wives and dates, left the Tea Dance at the Elk's Lodge and decided it was too early to abandon Mardi Gras for the Lenten season. One of the group was a part owner of the Imperial Laundry. He suggested they make use of some convict suits from the Atmore Prison Farm that had just been washed and cleaned. There were no hats or masks with the suits, so they purchased Chinese coolie hats and masks from a street vendor and proceeded to parade on foot." That little group led to the formation in 1940 of the Mystic Strippers Society – a reference to the prison stripes they wore a year earlier. The group first paraded in 1948 with an emblem portraying two striped animals, a zebra and a tiger.

The next morning the students ended their journey with a tour of the University of Mobile, a Christ-centered liberal arts and sciences institution before heading home. The students enjoyed every moment in the Port City from the campuses to the festivities! Great trip!

Memphis History and More Campus Tours

The TRiO Student Support Service students made their way to Memphis, Tennessee February 1-3 for a little Black History Month fun. The journey began at the University of Montevallo where the students had an awesome tour around the campus. Next stop was the University of Alabama with a walking and bus tour around the beautiful campus while learning about all the historical sites and opportunities the university has to offer.

After lunch in Tuscaloosa, TRiO continued to Memphis. Despite the freezing weather, the group got a little taste of the city's history starting with breakfast at Miss Polly's Soul City Café where each table featured the history of famous musicians-good food and great history all at once. The University of Memphis' warm and welcoming tour showcased many of its outstanding aspects for their students.

Next up was the main event, the National Civil Rights Museum which is a complex of museums and historic buildings. Its exhibits trace the history of the Civil Rights Movement in the United States from the 17th century to the present. The museum is built around the former Lorraine Motel, where Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. was assassinated on April 4, 1968. Two other buildings and the adjacent property is also part of the museum complex. The students were in awe from the Lorraine Motel sign outside until the exit. They truly enjoyed learning about this amazing movement and the many hidden figures that played a role in it. After a little rest, the final stop of the day was BB Kings Blue's Club and Restaurant where fine dining and great music abounded! It was an educational and entertaining trip that the students truly enjoyed.

Black History Month: Zora Neale Hurston, Author and Researcher

Zora Neale Hurston (January 7, 1891 – January 28, 1960) was an American novelist, short story writer, folklorist, and anthropologist known for her contributions to African-American literature, her portrayal of racial struggles in the American South, and works documenting her research on Haitian voodoo. Of Hurston's four novels and more than 50 published short stories, plays, and essays, she is best known for her 1937 novel, Their Eyes Were Watching God.

Hurston was born in Notasulga, Alabama, and moved to Eatonville, Florida, with her family in 1894. Eatonville would become the setting for many of her stories and is now the site of the Zora! Festival, held each year in Hurston's honor. She was one of the twelve inaugural inductees to the Alabama Writers Hall of Fame on June 8, 2015.

In her early career, Hurston conducted anthropological and ethnographic research while attending Barnard College. While in New York she became a central figure of the Harlem Renaissance. Her short satires, drawing from the African-American experience and racial division, were published in anthologies such as The New Negro and Fire!!

After moving back to Florida, Hurston published her literary anthology on African-American folklore in North Florida, Mules and Men (1935) and her first three novels: Jonah's Gourd Vine (1934), Their Eyes Were Watching God (1937), and Moses, Man of the Mountain (1939). Also published during this time was Tell My Horse: Voodoo and Life in Haiti and Jamaica (1938), documenting her research on rituals in Jamaica and Haiti.
